1. The first step in the process of the investigation is the identification of the problem. This is done by the investigator who is assigned to the case. The investigator must first determine the nature of the problem and the scope of the investigation. This is done by interviewing the parties involved and reviewing the relevant documents. The investigator must also determine the objectives of the investigation and the methods to be used. The next step is the collection of evidence. This is done by the investigator who is assigned to the case. The investigator must first determine the sources of evidence and the methods to be used. This is done by interviewing the parties involved and reviewing the relevant documents. The next step is the analysis of the evidence. This is done by the investigator who is assigned to the case. The investigator must first determine the facts of the case and the legal issues involved. This is done by interviewing the parties involved and reviewing the relevant documents. The next step is the preparation of the report. This is done by the investigator who is assigned to the case. The investigator must first determine the findings of the investigation and the conclusions to be drawn. This is done by interviewing the parties involved and reviewing the relevant documents. The final step is the presentation of the report. This is done by the investigator who is assigned to the case. The investigator must first determine the format of the report and the methods to be used. This is done by interviewing the parties involved and reviewing the relevant documents.
